Willie and Millie help each other with school jitters.

“I have a _____ report due next week, and I’m so nervous,” Willie said. “I have to report out loud and I _____ and can hardly talk.”

“I get _____, too,” Millie admitted, “but I don’t think I shake.”

“My mom said I should practice out loud at home, so I can _____ myself. She times me and I always take longer than I’m supposed to.”

“How much time do you have to give the report?”

“_____ minutes.”

“When you’re ready, I’ll come over to your house and be your _____. My aunt has to present a lot of business stuff at her job. Sometimes she has _____ people in her audience.”

“Yikes! That would kill me. It’s bad enough to have twenty other kids in my audience all staring at me. That’s _____ eye balls looking at me.”

“My aunt says one of the ways she stays _____ in front of that many people is she looks at one person at a time and makes _____ contact with that person. It calms her down instead of looking at a whole _____ full of people.”
